

The Health Professions Council (HPC) have today launched a variety of new resources for students and those working on approved programmes via a newly dedicated area of the HPC website.

The new area of the website aimed at students, trainees and approved programme lecturers provides information for students, which includes information on applying for registration, application forms and guidance notes.

The web page can be found under the 'Apply' and 'Education' section of the website and is titled 'Student Information'.

An Audio-visual presentation is now available to view with information on: the role of the Health Professions Council; information on regulation; how to apply for registration; and how to stay registered.

The presentation also includes subtitles and a transcript. It is suitable for use as part of a lecture on professional regulation and the HPC hope that students and lecturers will be encouraged to watch this.

PowerPoint slides and handouts have been produced to complement the audio-visual presentation. They aim to allow lecturers to deliver the above information in their own style. The transcript for the presentation could also serve as a tool for delivering the slides.

The HPC's new voluntary guidance on conduct and ethics for students based on the standards of conduct, performance and ethics is due to be published in late autumn and will be located in the student information section of the website. This guidance offers principles which the HPC would encourage students to use during their training.

Information about the HPC's new student pages can be found on the HPC website here: www.hpc-uk.org/students and www.hpc-uk.org/education